The Thursday meetings at Belle Vue stopped because the pressure of travelling on the ISL star riders mainly based in London became too much. It was also suggested in the press that the Thursday race night was unprofitable. After this meeting the N.M.M.C. fully took over all aspects of the speedway with I.S.L. remaining as track owner. Attendance 15,000.

This was the last meeting to be held in 1928. The track closed for extensive work on the drainage. Relaying of the track was also needed. As things turned out the track did not reopen for 60 years, being replaced by the purpose-built Hyde Road. By 20th October 1928 work had begun on the new speedway at Belle Vue pleasure grounds under the direction of the N.M.M.C. The track was being built around the Manchester central football pitch and would be an Australian style egg shape. Accommodation for 30,000 was intended.
