Huracan, Buenos Aires, Argentina

Built around a football pitch this brand new track was 440 yards long with bends 45 feet wide and straights 35 feet wide. The bends were partly banked leading into the straight to a height of 3 feet.

The top surface was brick dust.

The tour was organised by AJ Hunting who ran the track. Hunting had John Henry Iles as a fellow director of the South American company. Iles was President of the North Manchester Motor Club, organisers of the speedway meetings at Belle Vue.

Most of the tour riders were Belle Vue assets.

Riders made their own arrangements for the 21 days voyage from England to Argentina. The first to arrive were the Langton brothers Eric and Oliver, on the S.S. Africstar. They took 3 Rudge bikes and a supply of spare tyres and innertubes. They also took part in road racing riding Raleigh machines.

Whilst waiting for the remaining riders they gave demonstrations including match races during the interval of the football matches.

They also taught local riders how to broadside. The first to really impress them was Roberto Sigrand

Open Handicap

Frank Varey soon earned the nickname Il Diablo Rojo (The Red Devil).
His daredevil style and bright red jersey appealed to the crowd.
The high pitched scream of his Scott completed the picture.
The crowd had only heard the deep throated growl of Douglasses and Ridges before.

The Argentine Open Championship

The first round of this unique Championship was held.

22 riders took part in match races. It was possible for a rider to meet each one of his 21 opponents. A rider remained in the contest until he had lost 3 races.

He was then eliminated and so it went on until only 2 were left to contest the Final.

Wednesday 25-12-1929

Around this time the local riders took a stand for more pay. Led by Roberto Sigrand they demanded £5 for each appearance and £5 weekly wage. £5 is worth about £320 at 2018 values. The management stated they could not afford this for all local riders, They were willing to pay the demands to Sigrand and one other local man. The Argentinian riders except for onerufused tt turn out for the next mmeting.
